My Light

by Rooks_Rook

Summary

Lee loves everything about you but your hair is his second favorite part Laying on your bed with your head in Lee's lap was one of your favorite past times. Lee knows how to make you fully relax into his touch. First he carefully runs his fingers though your hair slowly working out all the tiny knots that sprung up though out the day then once he was sure they were all gone and not going to hinder him at all he gently massages your scalp. He continues to do that for the next ten to twenty minets depending on how your day went then he repeats. Sometimes he changes it up a little and makes small braids in your hair.

"You are truly the most handsome man I have ever layed my eyes on" Lee mumbles pressing a kiss to your fourhead.

You have to force your eyes open from how sleepy and relaxed he has made you. Giving him a small smile gesture for him to lean down so you could press a kiss to his lips.

Like always his kiss is the most love filled thing you have ever expirienced and will expirience, the few things that he can't form into words exploding between every kiss you share no matter how long or short it is.

Slowly you pull away from him and give a quick peck to his cheek before he sat back up.

"I think the exact same about you" you hum grabbing his hand in your own for a moment giving it a soft squeeze before letting go and getting comfotable in his lap again.

Lee's fingers are back in your hair gently curling it around them then uncurling and dragging them all the way though.

"Well you are the bightest star in the night, my guiding light that will bring me back no matter how far I wonder" he states matter of factly and with such sinserity that despite the fact he has said simier things to you even before you got togother you can't stop the flush that covers your cheeks and the quickening of your heart.

You bury your face against his leg hiding your flustered expression from him.

Gingerly he caresses your cheek with his hand and tangled in your hair.

"Why are you hiding?" he asks so softly that if he didn't lean down to press a small kiss to your cheek you wouldn't have heard him.

"Because you're to cheesy" you mumble letting out a small laugh caused by his acsededtilly tickling the back of your neck by just barly grazing it with his nails.

"If me speaking the truth of how you will forever pull me to you is cheesy then I'm fine with that" he mumbles back and all you can do is sigh fondly.

His words have had such a massive effect on you throughout your whole relationship and if he keeps coming up with even more elborate ways to say that he will never leave your side you don't think that fact will ever change.

And if your being honest with yourself you don't want it to, being fully content to bare the embaressment for the beutiful complements he will continue to give you.
