by Blakartoffel

Summary

Scott is bad at math, so Tango builds him an abacus

Tango stepped back, taking a look at his new redstone creation. It's giant, many redstone wires and components coming from the back, making sure it works.

It was a giant abacus made with the use of binary code and lighting up cushions to create the colors.

He'd made it for Scott, gotten the idea after the man had told him he's bad at math. Though he is not able to actually lend out his brain, he could definitely do his best to make it easier.

After convincing Xisuma to let Scott visit he proudly shows it, thoroughly impressing the cyanette.
